PASTOR---TRAINING AFM

Students, who wish to academically qualify themselves for ordained ministry in the AFM, must timeously (before the assumption of study) comply with the church's approval processes.

Prospective students must register via the AFM for the NWU AFM-specific B.Th. qualification programme as per the agreement between the AFM and the North West University's Theological Faculty. This prescribed programme complies with the minimum academic requirements as determined by the AFM.

Students will be required to follow an internship program (MIL) in preparation for ordination. Through internship under a senior AFM pastor, students will be guided in ministry exposure and involvement.

Application for MIL must be done with the AFM during the final year of study.

Students who follow the AFM-specific programme, will do modules that have been fully revised from a Pentecostal perspective. Other sections have been added to expose students to the Pentecostal views on matters that differ from the Reformed view. As with all of NWU's qualifications, the AFM-specific BTH programme is in accordance with the NWU's SAQA-registered outcomes for the qualification.

AFM students are facilitated and mentored by AFM lecturers who are approved by the AFM. Students will have to attend contact sessions as arranged by the AFM. Assessments to determine a participation mark for each module, will be in accordance with the assessment policy of the Faculty of Theology. Assessments of exam papers are arranged by the Faculty of Theology in consultation with the AFM.

The completion of this form by both assembly governing body as well as the region serves as the approval that the candidate after completion of the studies will be ordained as an AFM pastor. After approval the candidate needs to apply online to the below NWU website in order to be registered for BTH theology studies:

<http://studies.nwu.ac.za/studies/>

The NWU online application deadline for 2022 1st semester intake is the 30th September 2021 of and for 2nd semester intake of this year 2021 is the 25th April 2021.

More information can be obtained from studentservices@afm-ags.org or 012 644 0490.

Students that want to be allowed to the ordained ministry within the AFM must process their applications through the AFM. Only applications that are acknowledge and approved by the AFM with a letter of conformation shall be accepted as AFM students at NWU.

LANGUAGE POLICY

The Seminary Board of Directors and the Governing Body of the Education and Training Department have decided in its language policy that the language of teaching and learning is English. However, a student may request to receive the learning support material of the North West University in Afrikaans but must write the examinations in English. Permission to write the examinations in Afrikaans may be granted ONLY under exceptional circumstances.

➤ B-Status in Theology.

It is important that a student needs to ask him/herself the following question: "What do I want to do?" If a student wants to become involved in ministry, then BTh is a better qualification to pursue as the student will be better equipped for work in a church/congregation. However, if the student is not necessarily interested in ministry and aims to do research and wants to enrol for a Masters or PhD degree in Theology, then B-Status is a good option, as the route to a Masters or a PhD will be one or two years shorter. B-status is a two-year course, but the student can complete it in one year. If the student has successfully completed the B-status by passing each of the modules with a minimum 60%, the student may apply for the BTh Hons at the NWU. Applicant should have a computer and access to internet (<http://distance.nwu.ac.za/node/17256>)

Cost for B-status

Please note that the registration fee and the costs of the modules may increase annually.
